

Today we read The Giving Tree by Shel Silverstein and talked about how the tree and the boy had a give and take friendship. We then had a great time playing outside with the trees in the yard with games like,

*"Round and round the Maple tree, we all run around.
Round and round the Maple tree. Oops! We fell down!"*

Next, we collected some leaves off of three trees (Maple, Oak and Apple) to create leaf rubbings and compare them to one another in a special book.

My book has repetitive text which helps me learn the concepts of reading. Thanks for reading it with me!

Book

By _____

Find more fun activities at MommyNature.com!

© 2006 MommyNature.com

This is a Maple leaf.

This is an Oak leaf.

This is an Apple tree leaf.

This is a Mimosa leaf.